

Decision Dynamics Announces Changes to Management Team

Calgary, AB – October 15, 2008 Decision Dynamics Technology Ltd. (the “Company”) (TSX-V: DDY), a leading provider of operations management software for the energy industry, today announced changes to its management team. Kim Tremblay, Acting CFO has been appointed CFO. Jason MacVicar has joined the Company and has been appointed Executive VP of Sales.

The promotion of Kim to CFO recognizes the contributions that Kim has made over the last several months as Acting CFO and for the previous 2 years as the Controller for the Company. We are also pleased to announce that Jason has joined Decision Dynamics as the Executive VP of Sales. Jason MacVicar has a record of establishing sales organizations in small growing software businesses and we look forward to his contribution in building our sales organization and delivering revenue growth. “Decision Dynamics is continuing to manage its costs and these changes remain consistent with the reduction in the management team from 7 persons earlier this year to 3,” said Justin Zinke, CEO. “Although we are well funded as a result of the divestiture of our Wellcore business, we believe it is important to maintain an appropriately sized management team as we grow the Company.”

“Decision Dynamics is well-positioned to capture a large piece of the project cost management solution market. The fact that energy companies are focusing more on the bottom line presents us with a tremendous opportunity to get our product offering out there,” said Jason MacVicar.
